SIGSOFT SEN is a Hybrid Publication

SEN is a bi-monthly print and web publication. The print issue contains only abstracts of paper submissions. The web version, available in the ACM Digital Library (DL) contains the full version of the papers. All papers, reports, and book reviews are assigned a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) and a url to the location of the publication in the ACM DL.

SIGSOFT SEN Keywords

Authors are encouraged to use the keywords found on the ACM Computer Classification System (CCS) that is available online at: http://www.acm.org/class/1998/. For guidance on using the ACM CCS see http://www.acm.org/about/class/how-to-use.

SIGSOFT SEN Format Requirements

Author submissions are required to comply with SEN formatting guidelines for fonts, margins and paragraph styles. These are available online at: http://www.stidolph.com/SEN/index.html. As an alternative, the ACM format may also be used. The LaTeX instructions:are found a http://www.acm.org/publications/latex_style/ . The MS Word template is found at : http://www.acm.org/publications/latex_style/ms_word_template.doc

SIGSOFT SEN Issue Request

One copy of SEN will be provided to each author upon request. Authors should contact the newsletter editor after the issue has been published with the postal mailing address the issue should be sent to.
